

There's a ton of variation in the parts when I play live. The album version probably isn't the best reference because I'd barely written a part then and I was kind of just winging it on the first take. There is a nice fill going from the first stabs into the next section though which I never replicated, I've left that bit blank on the tab because I never really settled on what to play.